NIPSCO Names New Leaders for its Gas Operations and Electric Engineering and Project Construction Teams

MERRILLVILLE, IND. – Northern Indiana Public Service Company LLC (NIPSCO), a NiSource Inc., (NYSE: NI) company, reaffirms its core commitment to customers and safety with the announcement of three new Indiana-based leaders within the gas operations and electric engineering and project construction areas – effective Jan. 1, 2019.

“Serving customers and safety go hand-in-hand, and the collective experience these leaders bring to their respective roles will help us create meaningful and lasting improvements in these core focus areas of our business,” said NIPSCO president Violet Sistovaris.

Joining Sistovaris’ leadership team in Indiana, Dan Douglas has been named senior vice president of NIPSCO gas, based in Merrillville, Ind. reporting to Pablo Vegas, executive vice president and president for gas utilities across NiSource. Douglas will have responsibility for NIPSCO’s gas operations, safety management system and financial and operations performance. Douglas first joined NiSource in 1997, serving in a variety of roles and leadership positions, including his most recent role as vice president of corporate strategy and development. Douglas earned a bachelor’s degree in finance and accounting from Cedarville University and a master of business administration from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University.

Reporting to Douglas, Steve Sylvester has been named general manager and vice president of NIPSCO Gas, based in Merrillville. Sylvester has held various leadership roles across NiSource and its Columbia Gas subsidiaries since joining in 1986, including vice president and general manager of Columbia Gas of Ohio, vice president of distribution operations and most recently, vice president of safety for NiSource.

Jim Zucal, vice president of electric engineering, projects and construction responsible for major projects, transmission and distribution engineering, transmission system reliability and development and infrastructure modernization project support, will also take on the role of program management lead for the transition of NIPSCO’s electric generation portfolio. Based in Merrillville, Zucal joined NiSource in 2017 with more than 23 years of industry experience and holds a bachelor’s degree in electronic engineering from Franklin University and an associate’s degree in electronic engineering from the University of Akron.

These leaders join the other existing and recently announced leadership team under Sistovaris, which includes Mike Hooper, senior vice president of regulatory, legislative affairs and strategy; Ben Felton, senior vice president of electric operations; Jennifer Montague, vice president of communications
